Fastsize Penis Extender Review

The FastSize Penis Extender provides a degree of comfort below the comfort strap design (used by the X4 Labs and SizeGenetics extenders), but above the traditional silicone noose design. This is because the FastSize stretcher took the silicone noose and added a layer of foam cushion around it for added comfort. Although not as comfortable to wear as the X4 Labs or the SizeGenetics extenders, I still found the FastSize quite comfortable to wear.

And of course, comfort means you can wear it for longer which in turn means faster gains in penis length, which ultimately is the only thing that matters.

One thing that impresses me about FastSize is that the manufacturer provides outstanding customer service and really listens to customer feedback. They provide a forum on their website where potential customers can get quick responses to their pre-sales questions, and where customers can voice their opinions about the FastSize extender. On top of the forum, their customer service personnel can also be reached via live chat, phone, fax, and by email.

Customer complaints don't just fall on deaf ears - they get dealt with. A while back, some customers complained about a slippage issues where the noose would sometimes slip off the penis. Within a short time, the FastSize company came up with what they termed "duro bands" that they made available for a few bucks that could be installed on the extender to prevent the slippage problem. Last I heard, they had begun to completely redesign the extender to make it more comfortable. This type of continuous improvement and their level of customer support can be invaluable to an avid PE'er.
